ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor memory device includes a bit line, a memory cell coupled to the bit line and a word line coupled to the memory cell. A first time between receiving a write command for a write operation in order to write data to the memory cell and the beginning of the write operation is different from a second time between receiving a refresh command for a refresh operation in order to refresh data stored in the memory cell and beginning the write operation.